It simply went abead, as a matter of fact, with the task before it; and when the time came its readers found the paper, as they had learned to expect it, "all there."

A curious fact was that one portion of a report, delivered early at a Brooklyn telegraph office with the idea that it might beat the telephone was delayed by the press of business following the crippling of the great New York office and has not reached The Eventor World office at this writing. However, the missing links of information were, to a large degree, picked up later from the telephone wire.

Weakfish abound also at Murr's, at the Rautt, Dorman's, Brood Ch ninel and Snappert's Grove Creek station, and frequently striped bass are met with.

White, Assemblyman, and proprietor of the Standard, was several and proprietor of the Standard, was several days are appointed Special Agent of the census Bureau through the influence of Senator Hiscock. Mr. White deliberately and unsur-pectingly walked into what seems to have been a pitfall ding for his reception. When he went to Utica to look over the enumerator's absets sent in by the Syracuse census to the Supervisor's office he was coolly but politely informed that nearly all the sneets had gone to Washington. To-night the quid nunes discovered that Mr. White had forfeited his seat in the Legislature by accepting the Federal office by virtue of article 3, sections 7 and 8, of the State Constitution.

"Thrift, thrift, Horatio." It is a mistaken idea that the Indianapol s lawyer has not risen to the opporelevation to the Presidency. It all depends on how you look at it. When the long-faced elder was nomi nated by the Republicans to carry his grandfather's hat to Washington he was comparatively a poor man, with a numerous family of yet poorer relatives. His election was more or less justifiably construed by him and by them as an interpo sition of Providence for the exploitation of the Harrison family fortu In all his capacities as Uncle Ben Cousin Ben, Brother Ben and Grandpe which the most of the loss will be taken.
